

ALLERGIES ARE NOTHING TO SNEEZE AT

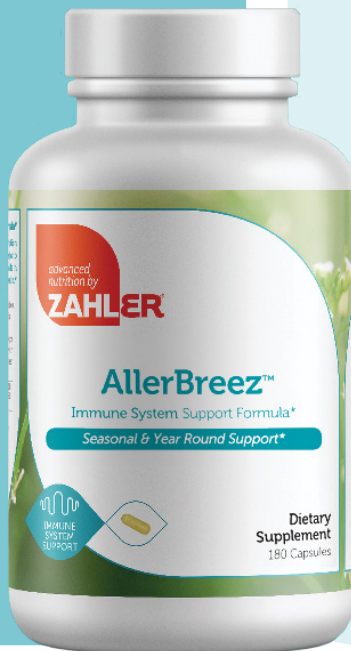

More than 500 million individuals across the globe suffer from allergies. Among them, 50 million deal with seasonal allergies, which have become a widespread phenomenon. There is no cure for allergies, and those who suffer may always remain susceptible to the specific allergens that cause their symptoms. However, with proper fortification, allergen tolerance can be raised by supporting the immune system. AllerBreez™ by Zahler offers seasonal and year-round support without unwanted side effects.

WHAT IS AN ALLERGY?

The body's immune system deems the substance, or allergen, an invader and reacts defensively, resulting in symptoms that range from slightly annoying to very dangerous. Allergies can affect a person's eyes, nose, throat, lungs, skin, or gastrointestinal tract. Allergic rhinitis is referred to informally as seasonal allergies, or specifically, rose fever or hay fever. These names are actually misnomers. Seasonal allergies have nothing to do with hay, roses, or fever. They're simply allergic reactions to inhaled pollen from trees, grass, and weeds.

AllerBreez™ combines exact contemporary science with time-honored, old-world knowledge.

With the advances in science, we now know more precisely what to use, when, and in which doses, eliminating the trial, and more importantly the error, of natural treatment. Certainly, modern medicine has saved many lives. But often, the tried and true nutrients and herbs are more helpful with less harm along the way. AllerBreez™ combines exact contemporary science with time-honored, old-world knowledge. Nature has a way of solving its own complications!

How Can AllerBreez™ Help Me?

AllerBreez™ contains Pantothenic Acid, Vitamin C, Stinging Nettle, Quercetin, and MSM (Methylsulfonylmethane). When taken before the heavy allergy season begins, it can be super helpful in building the body's immunity in advance. If you are already experiencing symptoms, taking this supplement can also be helpful since AllerBreez™ is designed to support a speedy system-wide response.
